"The CAGTC Board of Directors serves an important role, guiding the organization's policy and mission," said Paul Hubler, CAGTC Chairman and Director of Government & Community Relations for the San Gabriel Valley Council of Governments and Alameda Corridor-East Project. "Our Board is both organizationally and geographically diverse, rich in expertise from across the goods movement spectrum. The unprecedented challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic have cast in a new light the reliance of our nation on a safe, efficient and cost-effective freight network. I look forward to working with CAGTC's Board and engaged membership as we continue championing increased federal investment in our nation's supply chain infrastructure. Robust investment in our national freight network will go far in supporting immediate recovery and long-term economic growth."

Now in its 19th year, CAGTC is dedicated to increasing federal investment in the nation's multimodal freight network. Its 19-member Board of Directors includes the nation's leading voices on freight infrastructure development. For a full list of CAGTC Board members, please visit our website here.
